

Fort Point Project Management Hires Danielle Banks as Project Manager

Experience will support increased activity in biotech and healthcare markets

BOSTON, Massachusetts – June 15, 2011 – Fort Point Project Management (FPPM), a provider of real estate project management and relocation services, is proud to announce Danielle Banks has joined the firm as a project manager. In her new role, Danielle will provide detailed project planning, scheduling, coordination and communication for client relocation and renovation projects across multiple industries.

Responding to a recent uptick in client activity, specifically in the biotech laboratory and healthcare markets, FPPM sought out an experienced project manager to oversee sensitive renovation projects. With a B.S. degree in Facilities Management from the Wentworth Institute of Technology in Boston, Danielle provides the valuable technical expertise necessary to manage client programs within a variety of fast-paced environments. Her previous positions include roles with leading engineering and construction management firms along the East Coast.

“We’re excited to grow our team to include Danielle, a self-motivated professional who truly understands client service,” said Christine Mosholder, partner and founder of FPPM. “She brings numerous skills to the table that enable her to oversee a variety of projects, ranging from laboratory consolidations to financial services relocations.”

Currently, Danielle is overseeing renovation and relocation projects for clients including Genzyme, Brown University and Bank of America.
