Corporate Project Partners (CPP) to Become Fort Point Project Management

BOSTON, Mass. – August 21, 2008 – Corporate Project Partners (CPP), a provider of real estate project management and relocation planning services, announced today that it has changed its name to Fort Point Project Management. Following a recent office move to the Boston Children’s Museum building in Boston’s Fort Point area, the new name represents the company’s new historic location and acknowledges its broadened expertise honed over the past nine years.

“Although our roots were in corporate real estate projects, we have become experts in a number of other industry segments and wanted our name to reflect our full breadth of expertise,” said Christine Mosholder, co-founder and partner at Fort Point Project Management. “We now serve corporate, bio-tech, institutional and healthcare clients on their real estate projects; including planning and managing all aspects of their project and relocation.”

“Thanks to our dedicated team of project managers and their diverse experience, Fort Point Project Management has grown into a trusted real estate resource supporting a variety of industries,” said Steve Fox, co-founder and partner at Fort Point Project Management.

Representing clients throughout their real estate projects, ranging from masterplanning and out-of-the-ground construction to complex relocations and furniture disposition, Fort Point Project Management prides itself on understanding its clients’ business goals and drivers and aligning the real estate project approach accordingly. The company leads project teams of architects, engineers, contractors and furniture vendors through complex planning, design and construction processes, and serves as the single point of contact for its clients. Managing to detailed project budgets and schedules, Fort Point Project Management also coordinates furniture installation and physical relocation.

Fort Point Project Management integrates technology solutions into communications among its project teams and with clients’ employees to improve efficiency and minimize the anxiety and disruption to employees and customers as a result of a relocation.
